A large industrial workshop with a high ceiling and corrugated metal walls. The floor is concrete. In the foreground, a large, thin, curved metal piece is leaning against a wall. In the center, a complex metal structure with multiple loops and curves is mounted on a concrete base. To the right, there are several other metal structures, some on red bases. A green light is visible in the upper right corner. The overall scene is dimly lit, with light coming from windows and skylights.

A large industrial workshop or factory floor. The space is filled with various metal components, pipes, and machinery. In the foreground, there are several large, dark, curved metal parts, possibly exhaust pipes or structural elements, arranged in a somewhat chaotic manner. The background shows a high ceiling with a skylight and large windows, suggesting a well-lit environment. The floor is concrete, and there are various tools and equipment scattered throughout. The overall atmosphere is one of a busy, industrial workspace.
